ARBAT STREET TOUR (After the Kremlin tour with packed lunches)

Two of downtown Moscow's most interesting and important avenues are the Old Arbat street and New Arbat street, which run parallel to each other. One of the oldest sections of Moscow, it dates back to the 16th century. At that time it was also the quarter where court artists lived. Early in the 19th century it became a favorite district of the aristocracy, while a century later it became a favorite shopping street.
